Our Friday night mountain lion experience. Last update: NorCal Wildlife Remover came and picked up the remains, they were incredibly professional and cleaned up the mess left behind. I also just wanted to say thanks to all the neighbors who commented and came along with us on this journey. Now that all the dust has settled, it was a wild experience and I'm reminded how fortunate we are to live in such an amazing place. Update: the mountain lion came back once the moon had gone down to reclaim its prize (see photos below). We called animal control and they forwarded us to NorCal Wildlife Remover: (650) 477-9070. They're coming today to pick up the remains ($300). With the amount of mountain lion sightings on the rise, I hope this post helps anyone who has a similar experience. A mountain lion chased a deer into my yard and needless to say the deer is no longer living. The lion immediately got spooked and ran off, leaving the large deer carcass behind. I'm not really sure what to do with it? Does anyone have experience with this kind of situation? If it's still here in the morning, I'd love some recommendations of who to call about it.
