

Experience a King Tide
Free public walk and discussion
January 20, 2019.
8:30 AM at the pier.

King, spring, neap, and perigean tides. What do they all mean? How do local conditions as well as those miles and miles away affect what happens at our beaches? Join the Pacifica Environmental Family to explore and understand the interactions that influence our experience along the coast.

Sunday morning, January 20, 2019 will be the second "King" tide of the winter and will be only a bit lower than the Monday tide on the next day. Both mornings will give the curious a view of what may become the normal highs as sea level rises.

We'll also be taking photographs to document the event and share how to submit your photographs to the California King Tides Project website.
