

It is with great sadness that I have to announce that You Name It!, the antique/collectible store in the Manor Shopping Center, is closing due to the owner's diagnosis of a cancer that is treatable for a time but not curable. There is an interested buyer, but the Colombo family (our landlords) have decided that they do not want the store to continue. There are even people who are willing to invest as silent partners just to keep the business going. We are flattered by that level of affection for the store. We deeply regret the loss to our community of our store that has become a source of income for our many consignees and has become a warm, caring place for our beloved customers. We believe that we have been an asset to the shopping center (and the greater city) as many people (including out-of-towners) come to visit us and go on to use other businesses in the greater Pacifica area. The last checks will go out as usual on January 15 and the clearance sale will begin then. We are not buying or consigning merchandise at this time, and the last day that the shop will be open for business is February 28 (or earlier if stock is exhausted). Store fixtures will be available for sale through March. I am proud to be a Pacifica resident and I thank you all for your support over the years. Thank you to my employees Robin Lewis, Dody Wilson, and Jackie Bergman as well as all of the students and others that we have been privileged to work with over the years. As your friend, I close this message with deep regrets and sad goodbyes.

P.S. Please be respectful of our employees and courteous to other customers as we navigate this difficult process. For all of you who have expressed concern about my pain, this is not a painful type of cancer and I still have all of my hair. You have to look for the bright spots!
